So many cute and easy patterns. An oldie but a goodie.

This book contains a mixture of patterns. Some like the hamsters and owls are really cute and easy. Others I found a little disappointing. Jean Greenhowe was really ground breaking in her approach to toy making. The best of her patterns were found in Women's Weekly back in the 1970's and 80's. Today her knitting patterns seem easily available, but her patterns using fleece are well worth exploring. I have found some more of her patterns on eBay.

This book gives instructions on the making of 50 different small-scale items, including animals, mascots and games, set out with simple patterns and methods to be used. The toys are economical and easy to make. Over a hundred full-scale patterns are provided that can be traced off the page with detailed photographs of each toy. None of the materials needed are expensive, as oddments of fabric, together with card, pipecleaners, beads and elastic can be used. The author has written many other books on craft making including "Making a Victorian Doll's House", "Dolls in National and Folk Costume" and "Making Musical Miniatures".
