Edward A. Baldwin, Steve Baldwin : Riding Machines: For Kids (The Chilton hobby series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Riding Machines: For Kids (The Chilton hobby series):

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. This will keep you busyBy L. M. MACLEANThe riding toys in this book make me want to make them all. You can buy a metal pedal car for under $200, but these you can customize with fun seats, windows, and colors. Be warned, these are for the experienced woodworker. They assume that you have access to a metal workshop to make the axles. I am crazy for these riding cars, dump trucks, fire engines and especially the one with the jump seat in the back.There are also swinging, rocking, and rolling horses and other animals, a wagon and a wheelbarrow. This book is worth every penny.My only caveat is that this book was written before safety rules, so beware. Some of the toys ride quite high, which could be a tipping issue; save these for off-driveway/sidewalk riding. I would also add safety belts to the seats. Some of the toys have no back at all to hold a child in place. One car tells you to upholster the seats with decorative tapestry nails, which I think would be too shiny and pretty and too easy to pull out; nail or staple the car covers instead.
